

Congressman Newlands is carrying the war into Africa. In New York City, the hatching place of gold bugs, he is advocating the cause of silver, and though the ultra gold press will not publish his remarks, he is doing good service for timetallism. He points to the fact that Japan has brought a nation with ten times its population and resources to its knees, because Japan is free from the clutches of the gold trust and its great adversary is not. Japan is a silver nation and therefore independent of Europe. England has no mortgage on the country. It is going forward with a stride that is surprising. More spindles have been put up in Japan in the last two years than England has put up in five years. Instead of paying gold prices for articles of foreign manufacture it is establishing factories on its own soil. It adopts the best protective policy overdeveloped by making silver which Europe does not want, except at its own price, a legal tender. It is not particularly troubled about its credit abroad, but by making silver a legal tender it insures prosperity at home. Unlike the United States, the greatest silver producing nation on the earth, it does not make gold the standard of value, to strengthen its credit in England. Instead, when England refuses to take its silver at its nominal value in exchange for commodities, it establishes factories and manufactures those commodities.

The great and enlightened United States of America, which boasts of its intelligence and enterprise, should take a lesson in political economy from Japan. Instead of impoverishing its citizens to strengthen its credit abroad, it should encourage home enterprise, by coining all the gold and silver brought to the mint for that purpose, and if England does not want the silver, silver as well as gold, for its commodities, manufacture those commodities at home. That would afford more protection to American industries than all the tariff acts ever devised by McKinley or anybody else. With such a policy, if our gold friends did not want to wear goods of American manufacture, they could go to Europe and pay gold, or double prices, for foreign goods. Then if Australia and the Argentine Republic did not want to exchange their wool for silver they could look for a market elsewhere, and more wool would be produced at home. There would be a general business revival throughout the country, our vast and varied resources would be developed, there would be employment at fair wages for all and the country would enter upon an era of prosperity unparalleled in its history.

WHY THE PRICE OF MEAT HAS ADVANCED.

The Department of Agriculture is endeavoring to ascertain the cause of the advance in the price of meats. It shows that the pork shipments to Germany for March have been larger than for any other month. The exports of microscopically inspected pork for which certificates for shipment to Europe were issued in March, were 7,229,112 pounds, of which 5,527,641 pounds were destined for Germany.

Incidentally the Secretary of Agriculture reminds the New York Tribune, which says the figures of the Secretary are too high, that its editor, Whitelaw Reid, stated that the small number of pork raisers in France should not require the whole nation to pay a higher price for so important an article of food as pork merely for their benefit. The French pork raisers want a high tariff on pork, and the editor of the New York Tribune thinks they are unreasonable.

Regarding the beef question the Department finds an undoubted diminution of the class of cattle from which the beef supply is drawn. Taking the figures of the statistical division, which are approximately correct, there were in 1892, exclusive of dairy cows, 37,650-239 head of cattle in the United States, or 676 to each 1,000 of population. In 1893 there are only 34,364,216 of such cattle, or 493 to each 1,000 of population. This shows a diminution in the beef cattle of the country, and also that the increased price of such cattle in the stockyards is legitimate. Under such circumstances the market should be strong instead of being weak and depressed as is constantly reported. The price of beef in New York and other eastern cities is higher than is justified by the price of live cattle. Sometimes in Chicago the retail price of first quality beef, loin and porterhouse steaks and roasts is 15 cents per pound, and for rib roast and round steaks of the best quality, 12½ cents per pound. As such meat can be shipped from Chicago to New York for less than three-fourths of a cent per pound, the Department of Agriculture finds it difficult to see why the consumer in the eastern cities has to pay double the price charged in Chicago.

The Hailey, Idaho, New-Miner says the West is full of John Sherman silver bugs, and if old John himself should head the Republican ticket in 1896 he would get many votes. Western free exchange men should make the West "solid" before proselytizing too much away from home.

The Chicago Record says the topic of paramount interest to-day is the silver question, and if Major McKinley is really going to run on a tariff platform in a silver campaign the year 1896 will be fraught with interest and amusement.

DURRANT'S EXAMINATION.

THE COURTROOM. Agate crowded. SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—Another large crowd assembled in Judge Condon's courtroom this morning to hear the examination of Theodore Durrant, which commenced at 10:30.

When Durrant entered the courtroom, in charge of officers, he appeared pale and slightly nervous, his muscles twitched and his lip worked slightly, but otherwise he appeared cool and self-possessed. The courtroom was packed by the same crowd that attended yesterday's proceedings with a number of new faces added.

The first witness was Harry Partridge, a classmate of Durrant at the Cooper Medical College. Partridge testified that he answered to Durrant's name at roll call at one of the clinics on April 5th, Durrant not being present to answer for himself. April 30th is the same day that Miss Willis, who testified yesterday, said that she rode on the same train with Durrant in Alameda, when it is supposed he called on Miss Williams, the murdered girl.

Charles A. Dukes, another student, testified that he saw Durrant at the ferry on the afternoon of the 12th instant, and in a conversation with the prisoner, Durrant asked him to answer the roll call at the clinic the next day, as Durrant would be absent on a trip to Mt. Diablo with the Signal Corps. Durrant said that he was at the ferry to see some comrades of the Signal Corps.

Clarence, a student who accompanied Dukes, gave corroborative evidence of the meeting with Durrant at the ferry.

Emma Straven, a young girl, was next introduced to prove that on the Friday on which Miss Williams was murdered, Durrant accosted the witness and two girl companions near the church between 9 and 9:45 o'clock. Witness said she did not get a good view of the man's face, but he looked like Durrant from his back. A cross-examination failed to shake her testimony.

Miss Lucille Turner was the next witness. She said she had known Durrant about a year. Durrant had walked home from Emanuel Church with her. Durrant had spoken to her in words not those of a gentleman and asked her to undergo an examination, and that Durrant suggested a quiet place in the church to conduct the same. She told him her folks would attend to such matters. He spoke to her of the examination some time during the first of this year. Witness said she treated Durrant as if nothing of the kind had taken place, because she did not wish a coolness to attract remarks. She said Durrant had given her several questions to answer on the subject. A paper was introduced which she said contained her handwriting. The paper is said to contain the answers.

SHEEP KILLED.

THE VANDALS CUT THE THROATS OF THE ANIMALS.

RED CLIFF, Colo., April 23.—Sheriff Crowley has returned from the Herwick ranch, where 200 sheep were killed. The vandals went into the pen on foot, beginning by cutting the throats of the sheep, but this being too slow they soon began using a hammer.

This was the only flock of sheep in the county, and was the cause of a meeting of the cattlemen of Grand, Eagle and Routt counties at McCoy on April 6th, when it was resolved that no sheep should be allowed on the range. Mr. Herwick stated that he would dispose of his sheep as rapidly as possible if given time to get them in condition to market. This was not granted, and citizens all over the county are very indignant.

Herwick had announced his intention of leaving the grazing business and working his placer property on the Grand river near his home. More trouble is confidently expected.

NEWLANDS ON SILVER.

Japan's Escape From The Clutches Of England.

THE LINES TIGHTLY DRAWN.

A Pretty Fight Between the Silver and Gold Men.

Congressman Francis G. Newlands, of Nevada, is in New York City advocating the cause of silver. In support of the assertion that silver is the greatest of money metals, he said:

"During the time that James G. Blaine was Secretary of State I received a letter from the State Department introducing to me a number of Japanese, comprising a commission, who were in this country to investigate our money system. They told me that an agent from England had been in Japan trying to get their Government to demonetize silver. They talked with Senators Stewart, Jones, Teller, Sherman and others. They were warned not to think of allowing silver to be discarded as a money metal. The result of the investigation is that to-day Japan is the great power of the Orient.

"What would have been the result had Japan done as England wished when this question of war with China arose? Japan could not have carried on the war had she been upon a gold basis, without first consulting England. A gold loan would have resulted and England would have had Japan by the throat even as she has to-day. England fears Japan more to-day than she does any other nation on earth. Japan has been successful in her war with China. She has gained a concession of entrance to certain ports and the right of commerce with certain districts is open to her. England views this with alarm. She would crush Japan in an instant if she dared, but the combined powers of the world would not permit it. England has no hold on her from a money point of view, and Japan standing free and untrammeled, will come out from an era of ignorance into an age of progress as the mightiest power of the Orient.

"England is helpless. She cannot crush Japan as she did China. When that nation tried to close her ports to Indian opium, England closed herself in India, but Japan held out. To-day Japan is going forward with a stride that is surprising. There have been as many spindles put up in Japan in the last two years, as there have been in England in the last five years. How England will try to crush Japan is not known, but she will do all in her power to stop her growth, as she fore-sees an Empire is building up in the East that is directly antagonistic to her so far as a money basis is concerned. It will be the Orient against the Occident, silver against gold, and the practical demonstration, even for this short time, shows the great value of silver as a money metal.

"England does not fear us to-day. She can drain or fill our national treasury by a word. We are helplessly in her grip. We had a chance in 1873 to become the great silver country of the world; but we cast the opportunity aside, demonetized silver, and to-day England controls us; more absolutely than if she had left her troops and governors here since 1776."

Mr. Newlands says that while the question may be settled peaceably by the ballot, yet he would not be surprised if it caused war. He said: "Three-fourths of the railway mileage of this country is in the hands of receivers. Every railroad man in this country knows that his road cannot live, as long as the present high standard of wages, under existing conditions is maintained, and he is eagerly awaiting an opportunity to cut wages, but he does not dare. Last summer in Chicago, we were on the verge of civil war. It may come at any time, and the lines are very tightly drawn now. In the next election it will be the West and South against New England and the Middle States. A pretty fight is promised, and silver will be heard from in trumpet tones."

THE CARSON MINT PROBLEM.

The Examination of Jones Commenced—First Day's Proceedings—Inspector Mason on the Stand—Interesting Testimony—Heney, Piper and Harris Did Not Arrive.

(Correspondence of the JOURNAL.) CARSON CITY, April 23, 1895.

THE JONES EXAMINATION.

The preliminary examination of John T. Jones, ex-assistant menter and refiner of the Carson mint, charged with being responsible for the shortage, figured out by United States Inspector Mason at $75,499.75, was commenced before United States Commissioner Edwards at 11 A. M. to-day with closed doors as stipulated, newspaper reporters and the general public being rigidly excluded.

Mrs. Jennie Fisher was the officially appointed stenographer to take down the proceedings in full, and there being no further postponement or further time called for, the examination actively commenced.

General R. M. Clarke was recorded assistant to U. S. District Attorney Jones and principally conducted the examination on behalf of the Government, and the counsel for Defendant Jones were Woodburn, Coffin, Summerfield and Torreyson. Jones looked smiling and confident and like anything but a culprit.

There were also present Superintendent Adams, Melter and Refiner Harris, Warren Notowara, Lawrence Clark, Ernest Harris, H. H. Beck and Detective Grant. U. S. Marshal Humphreys and Ballif Stevens occupied the room adjoining and kept the doors locked against outsiders.

Certain books, documents and accounts from the melting and refining department and ten or eleven bars of bullion, including some of the "spurious metal" that Mason discovered were also brought over from the mint.

Inspector Mason was the first witness called and took the stand in behalf of the Government. He stated that he had been connected with the mint service over forty years, and had been especially detailed by the Government to come to Carson and investigate the reported shortage in this mint.

He then proceeded to give a detailed description of the methods generally adopted by all the United States mints, from the reception of the crude bullion, weighing, melting, granulating, refining, assaying, etc., throughout, also the coinage branch, the checks of one department on another, from the receiver to the superintendent, illustrating his remarks by reference to the bullion and apparatus at hand.

A recess was taken at noon for an hour and Mr. Mason occupied the afternoon till 4:30 when an adjournment was taken till to-morrow.

Heney and Piper did not arrive to-day, as expected, neither did Detective Harris. There was a large crowd at the depot to receive them. It was currently reported that Heney and Piper could not find Harris and didn't like to come here without bringing him.
